

Monday, July 30, 2007

DANNY "HOOPS" OURIAN LEAVES WIZARDS STAFF TO HELP PLANT SEEDS OF PEACE AND UNDERSTANDING THRU BASKETBALL

The Harlem Wizards New York Sales Rep for the last two years is leaving the Organization to be a Program Director with Peace Players International, in their Israeli Office.

The Mission of PeacePlayers International is to use the game of basketball to unite and educate children and their communities.

Their vision is bridging divides, and their main objectives are:

- Bridge social divides
- Develop future leaders
- Educate children to lead healthy, constructive lives
- Build community involvement to ensure long-term sustainability

Todd Davis, Wizards President said, "We are sad to see Danny go, he was a great employee, and did a terrific job taking care of customers, and bringing his integrity, enthusiasm and passion for the game of basketball to the job. We salute Danny Hoops for his effort to bring his love of basketball and children together for such a noble goal."

You can find out more about PeacePlayers International @

<http://www.peaceplayersintl.org>