Monday Night at Madison Square Garden the Stars were out to raise money for iStar Financials 5th Annual Shootout. The Night featured appearances by The Wizards, as well as current New York Knick Channing Frye, and numerous former Knicks.

The event put together by I-Star's Jay Sugarman brings New York's financial community together for a night of fun and serious fund raising. About $500,000 was raised for four worthy charities, Baby Buggy, Robin Hood Foundation, Human Rights First, and Teach For America.

Young fans were treated to entertainment by the Wizards, as well as Human Beat Box, Extreme Team Dunkers, and the New York Knick Dancers. Bruce Beck, NBC Sports Anchor hosted the event.

The night's highlights were the big money shots by Channing Frye and the Wizards.

Arnold "A-Train" Bernard kicked it off with a $50,000 ½ court Rick Barry underhand make, then Chris "Handles" Franklin improbably sunk the next shot, backwards, on his knees at half court for another $50,000. Channing Frye capped off the evening with the final shot of the night from half-court, banking it home for $100,000.
